

College of Medicine

Wednesday September 20, 2017
12:30 - 1:30 pm
Summerlin Campus, Room 2201

“Integrating Disability into Medical School Curriculum: Practical Strategies & Resources Webinar”

Hosted by the Association of American Medical Colleges

Featured Speakers:

Margaret A. Turk, MD; Vice Chairman, PM&R; Professor, Physical Medicine & Rehabilitation, Pediatrics, and Public Health & Preventative Medicine, SUNY Upstate Medical University

Susan M. Havercamp, PhD, FAAIDD; Associate Professor of Psychiatry, Psychology, and Genetic Counseling; Director, Ohio Disability and Health Program

Barbara Devore, MPA; Director of Development, Independent Living Center of the Hudson Valley, Inc.

Patients, within the context of the community, are the focus and at the center of our Values -
ComPetence, CompAssion, InTegrity, DIversity, RespEct, CommuNication, CommuniTy, DiScovery

The best physicians are prepared to meet the needs of a diverse and ever-changing patient population. Medical advances and an aging population guarantee that all clinicians will interact with patients with disability. Building clinical knowledge and confidence working with people with disability can help medical students competently and respectfully meet the needs of all patients. This presentation provides specific, practical methods and tools to incorporate disability into existing courses and clinical experiences for medical students.